

Language Lab Worksheet: Why Don't These Words Exist in English?!

Part 1: Match the Word to the Definition

Word/Phrase	Definition
1. Klutz	A. Express something clearly or artistically
2. Grief	B. Deep, heavy sadness after loss
3. Go wild	C. Behave in an unrestrained, enthusiastic manner
4. Filial	D. Moody emotional fog of confusion and anxiety
5. Envelope (verb)	E. Wild child who returns home broke
6. Convey	F. Clumsy human wrecking ball
7. Prodigious	G. Surround something completely
8. Angst	H. Love and duty from child to parent

Part 2: Fill in the Blank

1. I tried to tell her I was sorry, but I don't think it really _____ that way.
 2. That movie gave me such a feeling of _____ — like I missed something I never had.
 3. He knocked over a vase, tripped on the cat, and spilled coffee — total _____ move.
 4. My grandma's stories always made me feel _____ in love and warmth.
 5. I should've _____ the room before joking about hangovers at the work brunch.
-

Part 3: Multiple Choice

1. What does “read the room” mean?
 - a) Study for a test
 - b) Understand the social vibe
 - c) Decorate with books
 - d) Predict the weather
2. If someone is tormented, they are...
 - a) Blissfully unaware
 - b) Emotionally wrecked
 - c) Full of gratitude
 - d) Watching reality TV
3. Which is the “emo-est” word here?
 - a) Sorrow
 - b) Gratitude

- c) Favour
 - d) Efficient
 - 4. What does “prodigal” mean?
 - a) Super smart
 - b) Super cheap
 - c) Returns home after wild living
 - d) Good with money
 - 5. “Envelope” as a verb means:
 - a) To mail something
 - b) To lightly annoy
 - c) To wrap or surround something
 - d) To explain loudly
-

Part 4: Reflection Prompts

1. What’s something you’ve felt longing for recently? A person, place, or pizza?
2. Describe a time when you went full bull in a china shop — what broke?
3. Who’s done you a real favour — and how did you show your gratitude?
4. Have you ever thought you were being clear, but it didn’t come across that way?
5. How do you manage your own emotional awareness — journaling, therapy, or just deep sighs into the void?